My opening writing:

The albino white rabbit. A quiet, unique specimen that brightens a day from the normal daily routine. Perfectly tucked and perched on my lap while I lurk around, glaring at the green highlighted shoes. Very bright and powerful, I am trying to not flinch from the tremendous might and vivid colours. As I continue to admire the glamorous shoes, something catches the very corner of my eye. I quickly glance at the unidentified object and take a very long stare at it. Could it really be? The very mugs of them all. The Parthenon of Athens ancient Greek mug. Legend says that the gold and yellow colours displayed in the wonderful image are real gold made from chipped gold parts.
